

Tenure Track (Assistant or Associate Professor Rank)
Clinical Psychology

The Department of Psychology at the University of North Texas (UNT) invites applications for two tenure-track faculty positions. We seek an Assistant Professor (1 position) and an Assistant/Associate Professor (1 position) to join the core faculty of the APA-accredited doctoral (PhD) program in Clinical Psychology, which has been continuously accredited for more than 40 years. Successful applicants must evidence an active and potentially externally fundable program of research (area of focus is open).

The University of North Texas is a Carnegie-designated Tier One research university. UNT is located within the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex, which is the most populous metropolitan area for both Texas and the South, and the fourth-largest metropolitan area in the U.S. As the largest university in the metroplex, the flagship Denton campus educates over 38,000 students and more than 7,700 graduate students. The main campus is linked with the UNT Health Sciences Center via federal grants, research collaborations, and student practicum placements. Collaboration opportunities with other major universities in the area are also possible. North Texas VA Health Care System, which is home to the largest mental health service in the nation, is also nearby and a longstanding close collaborator. With 105 Bachelor's, 88 Master's, and 37 Doctoral programs, UNT offers great opportunities for interdisciplinary and collaborative research. The department is home to ~25 FTE faculty and two other doctoral programs, in addition to a large undergraduate program with more than 1300 students. Candidates with collaborative potential with faculty associated with the department's other doctoral programs in Behavioral Sciences and/or Counseling Psychology are encouraged to apply.

Substantial proportions of our majors (approximately 50%) and graduate students (approximately 30%) are from diverse racial/ethnic backgrounds and UNT is imminently projected to become recognized as a Hispanic Serving Institution. A documented commitment to and engagement with diversity in all its forms is expected. Current faculty evidence their commitment to diversity across their areas of research. To learn more about the programs' commitment to diversity and program more generally, interested applicants are encouraged to visit the program's homepage at: <https://psychology.unt.edu/graduate-programs/clinical-psychology>

Required Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in Psychology from an APA-accredited doctoral program in clinical psychology or foreign equivalent
- Engagement in impactful research (area open)
- Licensed or license eligible (any state is acceptable)

Preferred Qualifications:

- Record of seeking competitive extramural funding
- High quality publications and professional presentations

- Evidence of competence in undergraduate and/or graduate teaching
- Excellent written and oral communication skills
- Completion of supervised postdoctoral hours
- Evidence of commitment to diversity and equity in education through research or other scholarship, teaching, and/or service.
- Ability to supervise students working with Spanish-speaking clients and/or participants

Applications should be submitted at <https://jobs.unt.edu/> (position number: 00005015 for the Assistant/Associate Professor position and position number: 00005214 for the Assistant Professor position). In addition to a letter of interest and current curriculum vitae, applications should include a research statement, teaching statement and summary of teaching evaluations, three representative publications, and the names and email addresses of three writers of letters of recommendation (referees will be contacted via the online system to submit letters directly).

Review of applications begins November 15, 2019. Applications will be reviewed weekly until the search is closed. Questions may be directed to Dr. Jennifer Callahan, Faculty Search Committee Chair at Jennifer.Callahan@unt.edu.

The University of North Texas System and its component institutions are committed to equal opportunity and comply with all applicable federal and state laws regarding nondiscrimination and affirmative action. The University of North Texas System and its component institutions do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, religion, national origin, age, disability, genetic information, or veteran status in its application and admission processes, educational programs and activities, and employment practices.

